BigData

Did you think that companies like Facebook, Google or Twitter use SQL databases on their backend? Think twice! This session gives you an overview of noSql DB technologies publicly available.

Think Spring

This is a presentation for Java developers about the Inversion of Control (aka Dependency Injection) concept, which is the main concept of the Spring framework. A simple code example is used to show how complexity can be significantly reduced by using IoC. Then practical advice is given about how to use Spring and how to convert existing applications to IoC.
